DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

Restriction to one of the following inventions is required under 35 U.S.C. 121:

- I. Claims 1-18 and 25, drawn to a composition comprising a vaccinia virus expression vector with a negative thymidine kinase phenotype and a negative vaccinia virus growth factor phenotype, classified in class 435, subclass 320.1.
- II. Claims 24 and 26, drawn to a method of making a vaccinia virus vector comprising providing a vaccinia virus genome and mutating a growth factor gene and a thymidine kinase gene and introducing an exogenous nucleotide sequence into the genome, classified in class 435, subclass 91.4.
- III. Claims 19-23, drawn to a method of introducing an exogenous nucleotide sequence into a mammalian tumor cell in a host comprising contacting a tumor cell with the composition of Group I, classified in class 514, subclass 44.

The inventions are distinct, each from the other because of the following reasons:

Inventions II and I are related as process of making and product made. The inventions are distinct if either or both of the following can be shown: (1) that the process as claimed can be used to make other and materially different product or (2) that the product as claimed can be made by another and materially different process (MPEP § 806.05(f)). In the instant case the composition of Group I can be made by a materially different process such as by de novo synthesis of the entire vector comprising the mutated genes.

Inventions I and III are related as product and process of use. The inventions can be shown to be distinct if either or both of the following can be shown: (1) the process for using the product as claimed can be practiced with another materially different product or (2) the product as claimed can be used in a materially different process of using that product (MPEP § 806.05(h)). In the instant case an exogenous nucleic acid molecule can be introduced into a tumor cell in a host by a variety of methods which do not require the vaccinia virus expression vector of Group I, such as by naked plasmid DNA or by a variety of other virus vectors. Furthermore, the product as claimed can be used to introduce an exogenous DNA into cells in culture as well as cells in a host and therefore can be used in a materially different process.

Inventions I, II and III are related as product, process of making and process of use. Where all three categories of invention are included, restriction three ways is proper if the process of making is distinct from the product (MPEP § 806.05(i)) as is demonstrated above for the product and process of making in the instant Application.

Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and have acquired a separate status in the art as shown by their different classification, and because each of the distinct Inventions comprise distinct elements and therefore cannot be searched coextensively, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

Applicant is advised that the reply to this requirement to be complete must include an election of the invention to be examined even though the requirement be traversed (37 CFR 1.143).

Applicant is reminded that upon the cancellation of claims to a non-elected invention, the inventorship must be amended in compliance with 37 CFR 1.48(b) if one or more of the currently named inventors is no longer an inventor of at least one claim remaining in the application. Any amendment of inventorship must be accompanied by a request under 37 CFR 1.48(b) and by the fee required under 37 CFR 1.17(i).
